

Koa te Kirihimete me te Tau Hou hari Merry Christmas and Happy New Year

Junior Prizegiving

Congratulations to our prizewinners at Tuesday's Junior Prizegiving. It was a great occasion as we acknowledged the success of our junior students this year. It was good to see so many parents and whānau/extended family attend the ceremony and share in their child's success. Rebecca Chan, former Head Prefect, gave an inspiring speech to the students as she described life after school and shared some perceptive insights. With her permission, I have included a copy of her speech in this newsletter.

Thank you to Mr Robertson (Deputy Principal) and everyone else who contributed to this event.

Building Programme – On the Move

If you drove past the college on Wednesday or Thursday, you may have seen three rooms being shifted from their current site inside Gate 3 to the far side of the Somerville (Music) block. This is the start of the enabling work for our new Science Block, construction of which is scheduled to start in July next year. The Student Services building is now opposite the Tuck Shop and new netball and tennis courts will be constructed in front of the Moore gym over the summer.

Quad Opening

Last week, we formally opened the refurbished Quad and recognised the people who helped design and build it, as well as the families who donated to the project. I spoke at the ceremony about how it was significant to me that the first project in our property redevelopment is a student space at the heart of the college. As vital as the academic and co-curricular spaces are, it is important that we also invest in the social and recreational spaces for our students. Spaces for them to relax and unwind, and to gather and have fun together.

The year 13 class of 2018 donated a beautiful artwork for the courtyard and it looks stunning. If you get a chance, have a walk through the Quad and admire the sculpture. Thank you very much to our outgoing year 13 students.

Final Thoughts

As I look forward to 2019, I am excited about what it will bring. I talked to next year's Head Prefects and they are especially excited about the new houses and the spirit and leadership that is growing through these. I am pleased with how staff have used the MYP initiative to review their junior curriculum ... how we teach, how we assess, and how we prepare our students for ongoing success at NCEA and NZ Scholarship. There are many exciting initiatives happening in junior classes across the school through this programme.

2018 has been a busy, challenging and rewarding year. We introduced four new houses – Tawhirimātea, Tāne Mahuta, Tangaraoa, and Rūaumoko. Thank you to our amazing Deans, Assistant Deans, Prefects and all the others who have made the new houses a great success. The houses have captured the minds of students and created wonderful spirit inside the college.

We launched the MYP programme which will extend our students academically, as well as bringing more global perspectives into our junior curriculum. A number of staff have lead this initiative and it's exciting to see what faculties are doing in years 9 and 10 as a result. This culminated in the community project in term 4, with students running an exhibition of their work for parents and friends in the library after school. I was impressed with the calibre of the students and their work, and look forward to extending this service project across the entire junior school.

We joined the Glendowie Community of Learning (Kahui Āko) to strengthen the interaction between the college and our contributing schools. This has been a positive initiative as it brings the four schools, and their staff, closer together.

We mourned the passing of a student - Gabriel Steadman. This was a difficult moment in the life of our school and community, and I thank everyone inside and outside of the college who helped support Gabriel's whānau and friends, and guide our community through this tragedy.

Beyond the college, 2019 will be eventful for New Zealand education. The spectre of industrial relations and uncertainty due to the many reviews initiated this year by the Coalition government, will hang over the sector.

The Ministry of Education and PPTA are poles apart from a solution in the pay round negotiations, and we will inevitably have strikes in term 1 and possibly beyond. I believe that we're at a tipping point in NZ education and hope that the Government recognises that its most important priority for our country is to make teaching a highly valued career option, and ensure we get our best and brightest graduates choosing to go teaching and work with the young people of New Zealand.

Many of the large education reviews initiated by the Coalition government will be debated in detail next year. The Tomorrow's Schools report came out last Friday and is radical in its proposals, including recommending devolving power from school boards to central agencies and potentially limiting or reducing funding for schools such as Glendowie College. The report is out for consultation until April 2019. It is a very significant document that will define education in New Zealand for years to come. As parents, it is important that you are informed about this and give your feedback to the Government. I will provide more information to you about this early in 2019.

Whai i te raumati nui ... Have a great summer

For now, it's time to relax and unwind. I hope that you and your family have an enjoyable summer break. I wish you safe travel and a relaxing Christmas and New Year.

The school administration office (Reception) is now closed and will reopen at 9:00am on Wednesday, 23 January 2019.

Change to Year 10 Core Classes for 2019

Due to roll growth, we have created another core class at Year 10 for 2019. This means that the colour names of the core classes will be changing and your child may end up in a class with a different colour name. Please note, this affects students currently in Year 9, going into Year 10 next year.

Job Vacancy – School Canteen

A job vacancy is available for the school canteen. They are looking for someone who can work Monday, Thursday and Friday, with possibly more hours to cover sickness and leave. The hourly rate is $17.82 including holiday pay for approximately 17 hours per week. The position commences January 2019.

This is a fast paced environment and experience is preferred. If you are interested, please contact Silvi on silviann@live.com.

Prefects Camp

Last week, 33 of the 2019 Prefects spent three days together learning about leadership, team building and planning for next year with their Deans. The group had House team challenges to complete in the bush around Albany which culminated in them each cooking a part of a shared meal over an open fire. On day three, Mr Batchelar sent the Houses off on an amazing race event from Albany back to Glendowie College. They were required to complete numerous challenges on the way, such as climbing Mt Eden, getting a phrase translated into another language by a member of the public and getting group photos as evidence of completing each challenge. The first House to return was the mighty Tāne Mahuta!

Thank you to Mrs Rothbart and Mr Batchelar for their contribution towards making this a memorable leadership camp.

Mrs Sharon Hewetson, Deputy Principal

Speech from Rebecca Chan, former GDC Student

Aaaaand I'm back, which I'm sure it won't mean anything to a lot of you considering I am an unfamiliar face, but I assure you and as previously mentioned, I'm in fact an old student, an ex-GDCer, and someone who remembers this place fondly.

When I got the call from Mr Robertson about speaking here today, my first thought was 'but it hasn't been that long, I've only just left, it's only been 4 years .....'

In 4 years, Year 10s will have left this place and year 9s will be running the place. When I left GDC, I had taken 3 sciences, calculus and media studies. I worked at the cheesecake shop, I played lawnbowls, our house names were different, I was in the Asia house and our colour was yellow. I played Clarinet (not well) in the concert band and got nicknamed Squidward for it. Ms Jan was my very patient form teacher, and every week in assembly, I used to read out a random fact.

So where am I ..... 4 years later? Well, I've survived an engineering degree and emerged with first class honours specialising in mechatronics, which means I've studied mechanical, electrical and software engineering, so I'm not a transformer, I'm really more of an Iron Man wannabe.

I made the Deans honours list, designed a firefighting robot that avoids walls and obstacles, worked in a group of 30 to provide a long-term solution to New Zealand's freight and transportation problems, and I've coded a game of Connect 4.

I've also designed a fibre optics probe for detecting bladder cancer and won an industry award by Fisher and Paykel Healthcare which allowed me to represent the University of Auckland in the Engineering New Zealand Awards. I was a uniguide, which is like peer support for uni students, and I've been flown to Sydney to interview with a global management consulting company. I've represented my cohort in dodgeball, have been a roofer over the summer and worked at an acoustics consultancy throughout the year.

Turns out, 4 years is longer than you think.

And so, I guess it's my responsibility to clue you in and share some of my thoughts from those 4 years in hope that it will make your life just a little more smooth sailing. So bear with me, here are my top 7.

1. It's all about people.

Without even trying, you'll come across some great characters. Take for instance your form class – don't take for granted how great it is to see the same bunch of randoms every day. Build up some team spirit – they're your family and believe me, you will miss them when the time comes.

glendowie news

You're lucky at Glendowie. In addition to a variety of club and sports teams, you also get to take a few extra subjects of your own – language, media, art, drama, computing, which means you get to interact with an even wider range of people. At university, unless you make an effort, meeting people outside your specialisation or even just, in general, can be rather difficult. So take full advantage of how easy it is to meet people here and have some fun – you never know who you'll meet and who you'll keep.

2. Choose your people wisely.

Most importantly – surround yourself with supportive people who encourage you to do great, and don't drain your energy sources. I have been around with people who are negative, or they don't try or they don't care. Not only is this exhausting, it also lowers your own frequency. And life is too short to be on a down buzz all the time.

On the days when I couldn't figure out why my robot was running head first into walls, it was those I was surrounded by who stopped me picking the robot up and throwing it into the wall myself. Support doesn't have to be fixing the problem for you, it can be as simple as words of encouragement or helping you take a step back and start afresh. So even when my robot was still being a disobedient little rascal, as long as I had someone to help me through it or to help me laugh it off – everything was A-ok.

3. It's all on you.

You know how people say there's no such thing as a stupid question. I once asked if you can burn water, and my mum asked if vampires really sparkle in the daylight. Yes, asking questions is great, I have an incredible amount of respect for those who aren't afraid to keep asking until they understand something. But first, before you ask ... use your head. Apply yourself and actually think about the answer first instead of just waiting for it to be given. Teachers can teach but learning comes down to you.

And if it's any consolation, my sister wrote in a multi-choice test in year 9 that spiders are a mammal, she's now in medical school ..... miracles really do happen and all hope is not lost.

4. How do you work?

Glendowie offers you the perfect chance to take the time to figure out how you work and what works for you. Are you academic? If so, go for it and establish a work ethic and study habit, so you don't waste university time or grades figuring it out. If you're more hands-on, then find a path that highlights and enriches that – practicality is an incredibly valuable skill. Simple stuff but having an understanding of what motivates you and what works for you makes everything just that much easier.

5. Whilst academics are important, so is having fun and creating experiences, and good memories.

These days, people aren't looking for straight excellences or perfect GPA anyway. They're looking for rounded students with character. So, go have fun and enjoy your life, and consider it life education.

6. Be open minded.

In everything you do and everyone you meet. I never took hard materials, electronics, or computing, but here I am in mechatronics. I also thought my love for Media Studies would end in high school, but I'll be working next year at a company that creates the software for cinemas. No experience is wasted. So, do what you want to do or do what you don't think you want to do because you just never know.

7. Finally, my last and most important tip – when things get really rough, remember the chocolate bar slogans.

Take a break, and you're not you when you're hungry!

Juniors, you have a wealth of time on your side and so many incredible opportunities at this school. Don't waste them. Put yourself out there. Try and don't apologise for failing. Get prepared for the challenges to come and be excited when they do. Push yourself. Push others (not literally!). Have fun and give it everything you've got.

And if I could only give you one piece of advice. Let it be the Engineering motto ..... Work hard. Play harder.

Quad Opening

The newly redeveloped Glendowie College Quad was officially opened on Thursday evening, 6 December 2018. Guests included Parents' Association, Board of Trustees, and Development Trust members along with college alumni, teachers, students and the families who had donated towards the quad development.

Special guests were sculptor, Neil Donaldson, and his wife, Isobel. Fundraising for and carrying out planting in the quad has been a focus for the Parents' Association this year. Sara Haddon, Chairperson of Parents' Association, was asked to cut the official ribbon. Guests also admired the recently installed sculpture, by Mr Donaldson, which was gifted to the college by the leaving year 13 students. Tyler Sullivan, Head Girl, explained that the design was chosen because it represented the circle of college life — students leaving each year with fond memories, but being replaced by a new intake of enthusiastic year 9s. The new house murals, an art project begun at Summer Fest and completed recently by the Year 13 painting students, were also displayed. The project was guided by Mrs Helen Cooper, departing Head of Visual Arts.

Special thanks to Ms Cherise Stone and Eilish Wood (Year 12) for their help, and to Silviann Johnson (Staff Canteen) for donating pastries and Mr Caleb Tanner for taking the photographs.

(L to R) Richard Dykes, Rewa Vowles, Sara Haddon (Chair of Parents' Association) cutting the ribbon, Megan Hollister (Treasurer of Parents' Association) and Baden Pascoe. Rewa and Baden were among the families who donated specifically to the quad and have name plaques on the seats.

Peter McKenzie Scholarship 2018

Liliann Huang (Year 13) was awarded the $2000 'Peter McKenzie Scholarship' for Accounting at a Rotary breakfast on 15 November 2018. The Scholarship is awarded each year to a student who will be studying Accounting at University, and is given in memory of Peter McKenzie, who was a partner in Deloitte and a member of the St Johns Rotary Club.

Leavers' Dinner 2018

Over 360 students, parents and staff members attended the Leavers' Dinner at Alexandra Park on Wednesday, 5 December 2018. It was a truly memorable evening, filled with heartfelt speeches, great food and graduation certificates! A big thank you to all staff who helped make this evening successful and enjoyable. Special thanks to Mrs Bridget Rothbart for her superb organisation and dedication. All the best year 13, it has been a pleasure!

Year 10EST/10DTE Interdisciplinary Dragon's Den 2018

The Year 10 Enterprise Studies and the Year 10 Digital Technology classes worked together on an interdisciplinary project. The topic which each of the 8 groups based their inquiry on was 'cultural considerations from different communities can lead to creating innovative designs and/or products'.

On Friday, 7 December 2018, 8 groups of students showcased their projects to a panel of judges through presentations, which were available for public choice voting for Glendowie College staff and students. The products ranged from a Kiwi Pencil Holder, Chinese Jewellery Box, Chinese Pencil Holder, Racer Drone to the more intricate designs, such as an Indian Fantail, Wooden Thai Elephant and a Japanese Maneki Neko Cat. It was definitely an exciting event with the many different ideas presented making it challenging for the judges.

Congratulations to 'The Indian Fantail' group, who won both the 'Interdisciplinary Dragon's Den 2018 Award' and the 'Public Choice Award'. The group's members include Benjamin Hunt, Sujaanan Jeyaseelan, Henry Evans, Ethan Tizzard and Daniel Cormack.

MYP Community Project

This year, two Year 10 classes were given the opportunity to take part in the first trial of the Community Project at Glendowie College. The aim of the Project is for students to undertake service learning by choosing an issue which they are passionate about, and planning an action which could make a real difference in someone else's life. Students chose a range of actions, such as visiting local Year 8 students to tell them what to expect at college, creating a booklet on healthy eating for primary school children and presenting it to local students, visiting local rest homes to interact with their residents, teaching children in an after school care programme about Maori myths and legends by creating a book and teaching the children flax weaving.

Next year, four Year 10 classes will be chosen and in 2020, the whole of Year 10 will take part. Students who completed the project this year found it extremely rewarding, and all agreed that even small actions could make a big difference to others.

Mrs Willa Henvest, Community Project Coordinator

Caitlin Jones, Ella Hoodless and I were fortunate enough to take part in this community project, and we decided that we would buy and donate art supplies to a local primary school, Glen Taylor, because we are all art students and enjoy teaching children. Our goal was to inform and encourage their students to develop artistic confidence and creative thinking, as well as providing them with new art supplies. We contacted Ms Wrack, Glen Taylor's Deputy Principal, and collaborated with her. We considered what they wanted to introduce into their art education and created a plan. We taught two one-hour classes at Glen Taylor Primary School, using new art supplies such as paint, paint brushes and palettes, which we had fundraised for and purchased. We created a lesson plan in Powerpoint showing the kids simple art techniques and pictures, which they could try to recreate, and we helped them by demonstrating and assisting. Over $250 worth of new art supplies were provided to Glen Taylor Primary School. This project taught us a lot, for example, how to manage and plan for a class, and how to be organised and responsible to ensure that everything was completed on time and according to plan. We were all passionate about the project and it was a really enjoyable and rewarding experience.

2018/2019 Germany Exchange Programme

Last week was a busy week for our German students. On Monday night, six of our year 12 students departed on a 2-month exchange programme to Germany. They will live with their host families, improve their language skills, experience a German Christmas, spend time exploring Berlin, attend school and will no doubt have the experience of a lifetime. There were sad farewells at the airport, but also the knowledge that they were on their way to an incredible adventure and will return home with lots of stories to tell. Their exchange partners will visit New Zealand in March, and we will have the opportunity to reciprocate by welcoming them. Gute Reise und viel Spaß!

Farewell – Language Assistant 2018

On Tuesday last week, we said 'auf Wiedersehen' to Carmen Romelfanger, our German Language Assistant. This year, Carmen spent every Tuesday in our German classes assisting me and our lucky students. The students particularly enjoyed learning about German festivals and celebrations, sharing New Zealand traditions and having someone else to ask questions and practice their German with. Carmen is returning to Cologne to complete her teacher training (History and English), we know she will be a great teacher!
